Key Benefits:

- Store and track key business information.
- Rule system to automate routine business monitoring.
- Event processing to include realtime business information.
- Powerful search features to keep assets at your fingertips.

In today's business and economic environment there are a multitude of variables and conditions to track, even for traditional business. As your business grows it becomes more difficult to keep up with business objects, the conditions under which they operate and the events that are occurring. These complexities need to be tracked and planned for.

Docuvent is a combined document storage and event processing platform that enables you to track business objects, monitor their changes and process their events. This gives you full control to create rulesets so you can stop reacting and start planning.
